In support of BPR lift.

Australia Post has over 4000 retail outlets that provide vital community services to the majority of Australian communities. This footprint also provides Australia Post with the ability to provide most Australians with the much enjoyed parcel distribution network. The retail network must be sustainable for this business to survive. The cost to provide the letters service through-out the LPO retail footprint must be allocated to reflect a fair remuneration for the LPO in the regional areas.

If the overall business is under pressure it is too easy to neglect issues such as fair payment for services provided.

With this increase at least a struggling LPO can have a fighting chance at success.
