The Remote Area Planning and Development (RAPAD) is the economic development organisation owned by and representing seven local government areas in Central West Queensland.

RAPAD submitted to the 2016 inquiry on this matter and our opinions in that submission still stand. RAPAD notes the ACCC May 2017 Draft Decision and supports the decisions although RAPAD requests that this matter be reviewed periodically (e.g. two years) to ensure rural remote regions such as the Central West are not disadvantaged in access to globally competitive and affordable mobile technology.
