Thevenard is a port that would benefit from an exemption from the wheat Code especially given that the majority of commodities that go through the port are non - wheat and yet are bound by the rules that govern wheat.

Any port in South Australia that gets an exemption from the Code would be at an advantage compared to other ports with the full regulation as exporters would be attracted to that port.

My Three Main Reasons are -

- It would increase flexibility when dealing with exporters. This would encourage exporters to come to South Australia and buy grain.

- It would simplify the rules around loading vessels and capacity allocation at ports. Once again this is about encouraging exporters to come to South Australia to compete to buy grain.

- It would reduce the cost of regulatory compliance and improve the competitiveness of South Australian grain in the global market.

As a grower having completed my 49th cropping program and coming into our 5th generation on the farm, I have great concerns for the future of grain growing on Eyre Peninsula.

Kind Regards,
