Dear ACCC,

I am writing in regards to Australia Post's submission for a proposed price increase of postage stamps from 55c to 60c.

I support the price increase, however, this increase should only take place if this price increase would insure the protection of jobs at Australia Post. I believe that if this price increase is merely to increase profits for Australia Post and not to protect jobs at Australia Post, then I believe that this increase should not be permitted.

I would also recommend that should this price increase take place, that the services provided by Australia Post should be improved, such as faster and more reliable delivery times to destinations, and overall better and faster postal service to destinations across Australia.

I thank you for your time, ACCC.

Yours Sincerely,

Nicholas
