Subject: Telstra and TPG shared resources

Hello,

As an ordinary member of the public, I would like to make the observation that when it comes to other utilities such as gas; water and electricity, there is not a call for duplicated pipes and wires. Sharing of physical structure takes place : i.e. one water pipe, one gas pipe and one electricity cable.

It seems to me that it makes sense to share physical structures and competition still takes place.

Kind regards,

Phil Pain.
